Trina joined the department in the Fall of 2013. When asked why she chose Sociology she replied, "Sociology helps us take a step back and see the social forces shaping our lives more clearly. I like facilitating that process."

Trina teaches Environmental Sociology, Environment and Health, Social Research Methods, and Statistics. Her areas of interest include Climate Justice and Inequality, Social and Environmental Sustainability, International Climate Policy, & New Economics.